

1. Clean Exhaust Pipe. There should be no dirt or any kind of debris between the pipe and the pipe guard.
2. Loosen the supplied clamps until you can separate the ends. (FIG 1)
3. Insert the larger of the 2 clamps through the pre cut slits in the pipe guard at the larger part of the pipe guard. (FIG 2)
4. Place the pipe guard over the pipe. (You may need to tap on the guard to get it to slide on the pipe fully) Move guard around slightly to achieve the best fit around the contours of the pipe. (FIG 3)
5. Wrap clamp that is through the slits on the guard around the pipe and tighten the clamp to a snug fit. Do not over tighten. The guard will slowly clamp tighter to the pipe. (FIG 4)
6. Take the smaller of the 2 clamps and wrap it around the smaller portion of the pipe. The guard has a groove in it where the clamp will securely rest. (FIG 5)
7. Link this clamp together and tighten to a snug fit. (FIG 5)
8. Check pipe guard fit. If necessary, adjust slightly.
9. Tighten clamps down. We recommend the screw heads on the clamps be oriented as shown in (FIG 6).
The extra length of the clamps can be cut off or folded over. Be sure not to cut to much in the event if you remove it you will be able to reinstall.
